Hash Visits American Legion, Veterans Not Surprised

For what now seems to be an uncountable number of times, the hash again visited American Legion Post 139. Thanks to WoWo and a decent chunk of money, the veterans who call Post 139 home looked the other way to our debauchery as Assfinder, DuckJob, and wannabe visitors like TurdBurd's singing revealed the better parts of most of the women in the room. Hashers that were veterans complained about flashbacks of holiday party casualties, incoming rounds of jello shots and the occasional attack of a drunk SloppyHo were worse than anything they had seen in the armed services.

However, younger hashers like R-U-N, did not seem to recognize this fact and asked questions like, "Is this trail A to A?" Many laughed at the remark, and a few wondered if it was really possible that she didn't know that Post 139 is the single most common party location of WH4. But, to her defense, more things have been forgotten and brain and liver cells killed at Post 139 than hares have thrown flour on trail. Perhaps hares need to set better trails, but that's a rant for another day.

Rise in Racism Noticed in the Hash; ACLU Concerned.

With the warming weather and a holiday weekend, an increasing number of hashers have been observed participating in and supporting racism activities. The America's Consumers of Liquor Union (ACLU) has notified the WH4 mismanagement of the alarming increase. In response to this alarming trend, we are enacting a new slew of traditions to counter this tragedy. Future infractions will be swiftly punished with rounds of beer. Some may find this amazingly similar to how we've dealt with the problem in the past but we would like to reaffirm our commitment to punishing violators like Wang Chunks, And Hows Her Bush, SlipKnot, Just Ludwick, and Just Kathleen. Anyone considering participating in similar acts of racism can be assured in swift justice, large quantities of beer and potential censorship from the ACLU.

WH4 GM, Indiana Bone and the Tampon of Doom hits 25.

On WH4's 997th running, a conspiracy was revealed: one of the two GMs was exposed to have only 25 runs. Who allowed this and what action should be taken was the subject of a recent White House Congressional Investigation. Indiana Bone (the accused) alleges that WH4 mismanagement lost her hash count while she was in Africa, however others suspect that this is just a stereotypical case of what happens when living in a theocracy and that we shouldn't be surprised that critical paperwork is mishandled between administrations. Some even went so far as to question how critical the hash count was to begin with, while yet others accused the administration for using this as a political stunt to gain additional press coverage and a nice tall drinking vessel to hold her beverage of choice. F=MA also joined the 25 run mug club, but without nearly as much controversy.

Hashers Found, Local Authorities Relieved

Hashers long hoped lost, were found today much to the disappointment of local hashers. Among them were:

Beer Slut, Pork & Cheese, Nice Tits, Donald Dick, BookSmartPussyDumb, Anus Luganus. Local authorities were told they could stop searching for them. "Like we were looking for these guys anyway," they replied.

Yes, they're doing what you think they're doing.
